We define homework as any activity that pupils undertake outside of school lesson time, either on their own or with the support of family members. At Benington School we have a strong commitment to parental involvement and see homework as one way of developing this partnership.

Why give homework?

It can inform parents about work going on in class;

It can further stimulate enthusiasm for learning;

It takes advantage of the home environment and resources and the chance for some one to one adult time;

It can be a great source for gathering topic information to share with all the children;

It is a great opportunity to rehearse key skills such as times tables, doubling facts, addition sums, spellings, handwriting and other key facts;

It helps to foster good habits of organization and self discipline in preparation for the demands of Secondary School.

Homework at our school

Whilst we support all of the above key principles, Benington Primary is not a school at which homework dominates home and school life. We accept that not every activity will capture children and parents' imagination and that weekends can sometimes be busy. We believe that homework should be enjoyable and manageable for all concerned and that if it becomes a chore/burden/source of conflict it ceases to be a constructive aspect of teaching and learning.

We do not specify amounts of time that must be spent on a task, preferring individual children and families to set their own routines. Individual teachers are happy to give advice.

We hope the children are motivated by positive incentives and by the tasks themselves; children are not punished if they fail to complete the work. However discreet homework registers are kept and if a child consistently fails to complete and return tasks, this is discussed with the child and their parents.

Our routines and expectations

Willow, Beech and Oak Class give out half termly homework before each holiday.

The work should always have been explained and discussed in class before coming home; it may be a continuation of classwork, or a maths games already familiar to your child. It is our intention, and good practice, not to send work home that the child cannot already do i.e. parents are not expected to teach new skills.

There should be a clear explanation/reminder from the teacher of what is expected.

Each child has a homework book. The tasks set will always need to be handed in. They will be marked or teachers will respond or give feedback, for example, sharing results in class discussion or putting work onto a display

Broadly speaking these are current expectations:

Acorn – daily reading, learning key words and completing a literacy or maths based task.

Willow – daily reading, learning spellings and choosing a task from their homework book.

Beech – daily reading, weekly times tables (for a weekly test), spellings and choosing a task from their homework book

Oak - daily reading, weekly times tables (for a weekly test), spellings and choosing a task from their homework book

We expect children to maintain the same standards for presentation of homework as we set in school i.e. to use their best handwriting and a sharp pencil or black pen.

As far as possible, homework will be related to class topics. This is important as it helps parents to know more about what is going on in class and to support enthusiasm for learning. Parents might, for example, find themselves supporting research of Egyptian Gods, finding out about grandparents' experience of school or measuring objects around the home. This also means that each child can pursue a set task at their own level of ability.

Increasingly teachers are using the web for homework. This may be directing children and parents to play a specific game from Interactive Resources or, to comment on a blog.

In the few weeks prior to SAT tests, the Year 6 children will be given additional revision work.

If you take holiday during term-time, something we actively discourage, parents may not request work from the teacher. We suggest that parents organize a holiday diary.

What to do if you have concerns

If your child lacks interest or if it becomes a battleground please email your child's teacher in the first instance.

If you still have concerns, please email the Head teacher.
