

Parent & Pupil Well-Being Questionnaire - June 2020

1 = not at all and 5 = completely agree.

What year group is your child in?	I feel ready for my child to return to school.	My child feels ready to return to school.	I know what is expected of me when they return.	I feel my child will be safe in school	There is someone at school who seems to genuinely care about my child.	The school has supported us during lockdown.	My child has found lockdown challenging.	As a family we have found lockdown challenging.	My child has completed home learning activities set by their teacher.	Please let us know if you think your child might need specific support due to changes such as bereavement or family changes. Any other comments or concerns.....
R	1	1	5	1	5	5	1	2	3	The only reason I dont think its safe to be at school is because of the virus and the social nature of young children and the close contact care they need. The school is an amazing family feel school who have done amazingly during lockdown and I'm sure will do everything they can to keep the children as safe as they can and as happy as they can. But I Personally dont think it is safe for the children or teachers yet.
R	1	1	5	3	5	5	1	2	3	I have been impressed withmy son's maturity in dealing with the pandemic. He has generally been happy and has completed work activities some from his teacher some that his brothers are doing and some i have given him. Recently he was a bit upset about getting old and dying. But he says he has no questions about returning to school and isnt worried

R	5	5	4	5	5	5	2	5	2	We havent been able to homeschool my daughter much at all as we both work and trying to work from home whilst looking after 3 children under 5 is quite difficult! She is happy though and very ready to come back to school. We are happy for her to return as long as the children are made to feel as normal as possible.

R	1	1	3	3	5	5	1	1	5	My reason for not sending my daughter back to school is becauseI dont think its fair for a 5 year old to be told she cant play with her friends and has to social distance and I dont think thats good for mental health of a child that age. I do think the school have been so supportive during this time and I hope when september comes she will be able to get back to enjoying school with her friends :)

To continue to keep children engaged and enthusuastic it would be good to be given more lessons like the teachers would plan for school.

3	1	1	5	3	5	5	1	2	4	My son seems to have taken it all in his stride. Has completed home learning...with some resistance but that has been no different to the resistance to doing homework! When asked about school he of course says he is not ready to go back but when I have spoken about him going back to key worker school he has no questions or concerns.
3	3	3	4	3	3	3	3	3	3	I have spoken to the class teacher about having a conversation prior to return about specific learning issues and about wellbeing requirements.

4	1	1	5	3	5	5	1	2	4	I imagine my son will feel quite anxious if I return to work and he returns to school. We had a chat about returning to school and he thinks its stupid to have more in school than need to be there (his words). My concern is as much as I try to shield him he will pick up on my anxiety about the return to school before I am happy it is safe for children to be there. At the time of him returning for key worker school we will begin some training to develop comfort in being outside of the home. He has remained in our home or back garden for the majority of lockdown. We dont walk in local environment regularly but I will increase this closer to the return to school to help the transition.

4	5	5	4	4	5	5	5	4	4	My daughter has a heightened sense of emotions. She has found separation from friends the hardest thing. She does need routine again and we beleive that the risk of damage to her mental health of an extended lockdown actually exceeds the risk to her and us

4	5	1	5	5	5	5	5	5	5	I think we have all found lockdown challenging and routine difficult. I think being back at school will only help my son re adjust in this difficult time

6	5	5	5	5	5	5	5	5	5	We have had a very difficult lockdown. We have lost a beloved family member and not been able to be there for their family. Our child is very anxious and has been missing their friends. We are at the end of our tether and desperately want them to be able to

6	1	1	1	1	5	5	1	1	5	I am very proud of how resilient my children have been and how well behaved and understanding they have acted in these uncertain times. I believe the school have put alot of good distancing measures in place. But I personally believe it is too early and my decision to keep my daughter home was based on that. It still hasn't been backed by the teachers unions or medical professionals. We are all good. Sometimes found getting everything on the home learning list done a bit hard so we did english and maths and a bit of reading and she chose whatever else she wants to do. Sometimes it was doing her big sisters art work with her, sometimes it is watching a film. We are going on how the day is and changing what we do by how everyone is that day. She has learned cross stitching and is loving it and in her own words she says its 'really satisfying". I hope everyone at the school is safe and stays safe.
